

MadLibs Introduction to Computational Poetry

1. Fill out the table together

	One	Two	Three	Four	Five	Six
Noun
Plural Noun
Verb (Present Tense)
Verb (Present Tense)
Part of Body (Plural)
Adjective
Plural Noun
Adjective

The Magic Computers, MadLibs #11, Published 1982. Found in Jesse Vig, (2018), “A.I. Plays Mad Libs and the Results are Terrifying,” Medium,
<https://towardsdatascience.com/a-i-plays-mad-lib-and-the-results-are-terrifying-78fa44e7f04e>

2. Roll the dice for each blank and use the word in the column number that you rolled to fill in the blank

Like this mad libs, the computer will randomly draw from a dictionary to fill in the blanks in your poem with randomly selected words.

The Magic Computers, MadLibs #11, Published 1982. Found in Jesse Vig, (2018), "A.I. Plays Mad Libs and the Results are Terrifying," Medium,
<https://towardsdatascience.com/a-i-plays-mad-libs-and-the-results-are-terrifying-78fa44e7f04e>